

Painting Group Report March 24

Seven members turned up for the February meeting...three of these being new to the group.

The theme of the day was mushrooms, carrying on from last month's sketching and painting flowers in water colour. Mushrooms make an amazing still life drawing/painting due to the intricacies of their gills and skin patterns. Replicating the light and shade of them requires very subtle observation and even more so with the delicate markings created by brush and pen.

The artists partook of coffee and shortbread to sustain them at the half way break, and then finalised their creations with some excellent results.
